First molecular cloning and characterization of D-arabinitol 4-dehydrogenase genes from Clostridium spp. A general method for the cloning of cloned genes is desirable to facilitate the study of physiological and metabolic features in the Clostridium genus. D-Arabinitol 4-dehydrogenase is a d-arabinose-specific enzyme of the D-ribulose-5-phosphate (Ru5P) pathway, which has been used to characterize bacterial D-arabinitol utilization. The gene encoding D-arabinitol dehydrogenase, the protein product of the araE gene, has recently been cloned from a Clostridium thermocellum genome sequence. In this study, we successfully cloned the araE gene from the genomes of various Clostridium spp. The araE gene of Clostridium diolis LMG10987(T) was amplified by PCR and cloned into the M13-Universal T-vector. The nucleotide sequence of the cloned DNA fragment demonstrated the highest identity to the araE gene of Clostridium thermocellum DSM1313. The araE gene of Clostridium beijerinckii DSM6421 was amplified and the encoded protein was expressed in Escherichia coli BL21(DE3). The enzyme was purified, and the specificity of the purified enzyme was characterized.
