Published 31 May 2010 Up-and-coming French act Thadaglow are currently touring North America on their Something's Gotta Give EP album tour. Last night (28 May) at California's Pier 48, the act stopped by the 24 Hour Party House for their first performance in the U.S. Meanwhile, Normapp's Chris Morris has taken a humorous approach to the cover artwork for his just-released song "Cover me in Oil!" for Thadaglow's upcoming album. When asked about the process in an interview with Drowned in Sound, the artist explained: "Well, I would say that it's not something that I did really consciously. I've had this song for a long time. It's really simple. I wanted a very simple cover, so I did it with a little Photoshop and Illustrator to create a little bit of a minimalism." "Cover me in Oil!" is now available as a track download from the Something's G

Dual-center multi-scan cryo-FEG imaging of metallic nanoparticles. The accurate modeling of the signal of metallic nanoparticles requires the knowledge of the field distribution of the incident electrons and the phase-shift acquired by the electrons upon their passage through the nanoparticle. In this paper, we present a high resolution imaging strategy of the metallic nanoparticles by an improved cryo-FEG imaging mode. This dual-focus electron microscope is based on a dual-focus cryo-FEG with a dual-cryomounting sample holder. The cryomounting permits to manipulate the sample in both x and y directions. This approach allows us to reach two different points in the same nanoparticle, or just measure a different area of the particle, thanks to the crystals rotation.Q: Using internal StringBuilder cause BufferOverflowException? FreedomWorks University will give you the tools to understand economics, the workings of government, the history of the American legal system, and the most important debates facing our nation today. Enroll in FreedomWorks University today! Search FreedomWorks Resources Blog When Is a Dead Horse Bad? We've written many times about the horrible new tax proposal called the American Health Care Act (AHCA). As for the merits of AHCA, from a FreedomWorks perspective, it's just another terrible idea to raise taxes on Americans and destroy the private health care system of the United States. The tax hikes and burdensome regulations will only cause people to use the government system more and more. The reason this is so obvious is that the underlying philosophy of Obamacare was to centrally plan the entire health care system. So if you raise taxes, impose numerous new taxes and regulations and destroy the private health insurance market that is the only economic recourse the American people have. Economist Dean Baker of the Economic Policy Institute has done an excellent job breaking down the math of the deal. He explains that if Congress goes along with the proposal, which includes the dramatic tax increase on high-income Americans, the budget deficit will be cut in half in two years, but in order to achieve that, Obamacare's Medicaid expansion would have to be cut, insurance company subsidies would have to be cut, and spending would have to be cut by a total of $338 billion over the next two years. The bottom line is that Americans would be forced to pay tens of billions of dollars more per year to access private coverage. But perhaps the biggest problem with the plan is that it doesn't do enough to
