I look at Adobe’s “What’s New in CS6” feature for each Photoshop release and try to keep an eye out for the new features while keeping my eyes in my product reviews. As the new features keep swelling, it gets harder to keep track of them all. Here are a couple of my favorite new features: It allows you to get others involved in your work by way of their comments. The real estate market in the United States has been pretty stable over the last few years. Many people still have a hard time believing in this, especially when we talk with foreign investors and see the tens of billions of dollars flowing into U.S. homes. Then you go to an auction in California, an area that saw a two-year foreclosure rate of roughly one foreclosure per day, and start seeing things that are beyond anything that American residential real estate has ever seen or would ever even want to see. During the recent national election, I formed the opinion that the Democrats and Republicans were both the same. That is not to say that there are no differences between the two parties, but when it came to the market place and the real estate market, they were all on the same page. The only difference between what they believe is that the Republicans pretend to be for the working class while the Democrats pretend to be for everyone, even though they don't actually do anything for anyone as long as they keep their campaign coffers full. As of late, however, the Democrats feel that it is time to take a more clear stance. If you have been watching the news, you would have seen what has been going on in the housing market during the last few months. While the Republicans were happy to keep quiet and try to change the subject, the Democrats have been making it clear that something needs to be done. Yes, there has been a few years of high growth, but who really believes that we have reached the bottom? If the housing market was in the best shape it has ever been in, we wouldn't be seeing the number of foreclosures that we are seeing right now. The market is different than it has ever been, and if a real estate investor isn't prepared for a complete shift of consumer behavior, they are going to be in for a bad time.
